Green & Silver Route

In 1946, Tom and Angela Rolt left Athlone aboard Le Coq, traveling to Dublin via the Grand Canal and returning to Athlone via the Royal Canal. This journey was documented in the book Green and Silver, published in 1949. With the reopening of the Royal Canal in October 2010, this journey is possible once more. The name Green and Silver seems an apt name for the route, echoing as it does, the mixed urban & rural nature of this journey. This log book documents your attempt to complete the circular route formed by the Royal Canal, River Liffey, Grand Canal, River Shannon and Camlin River. Successful completion of the route by a suitable boat will be recorded. Terms & Conditions apply. See www.dublin.iwai.ie for details.
